

India vs Pakistan Asia Cup 2025: India Begin Super Fours with a Win – Is Pakistan Out?

The India vs Pakistan clash in the Super Four stage of the Asia Cup 2025 lived up to its billing, delivering a high-octane battle that ended with India emerging victorious. The Men in Blue kicked off their Super Four campaign with a strong performance, leaving Pakistan on shaky ground in the race for the final.

India's Dominant Start

India's top order once again led the charge, with Shubman Gill and Rohit Sharma setting the tone early. Virat Kohli's composure in the middle overs and Hardik Pandya's finishing touch ensured that India posted a competitive total. The bowlers, led by Jasprit Bumrah and Kuldeep Yadav, then executed their plans to perfection, dismantling Pakistan's batting lineup at key stages.

Pakistan's Concerns

For Pakistan, this loss is more than just another defeat against their arch-rivals. Their qualification hopes are now under serious threat. The top order, which has struggled for consistency throughout the tournament, failed to provide a solid foundation. Despite efforts from Babar Azam, the team lacked partnerships that could challenge India's disciplined attack.

Qualification Scenarios

So, is Pakistan out? Not yet. While the defeat has severely dented their chances, mathematically they still remain in the hunt. To qualify, Pakistan must win their remaining matches in the Super Four and hope other results go their way. Net run rate (NRR) will also play a crucial role, making big-margin victories essential.

What Lies Ahead

For India, the win boosts confidence and momentum as they edge closer to securing a spot in the final. For Pakistan, it's a test of resilience. The upcoming matches against Sri Lanka and Bangladesh will decide whether they can bounce back or bow out early.

Final Word

The India-Pakistan rivalry never fails to create drama, and this result has only added more intrigue to the Asia Cup 2025 Super Fours. India's win keeps them on track, while Pakistan must fight harder than ever to stay alive in the competition.
