

Jasprit Bumrah Contract: Complete Breakdown of Salary, Earnings, and More

Jasprit Bumrah, one of the most feared fast bowlers in world cricket today, is not only a key figure in India's bowling attack but also one of the highest-paid cricketers in the country. Known for his deadly yorkers, calm temperament, and match-winning abilities, Bumrah's financial portfolio reflects his stature in the game. Here's a clear breakdown of his salary, earnings, and more.

BCCI Central Contract

As of 2025, Jasprit Bumrah is part of the A+ category in the BCCI central contracts – the highest bracket available to Indian cricketers. This category includes only a few elite players and guarantees an annual retainer of ₹7 crore. In addition to the retainer, Bumrah also earns match fees:

- ₹15 lakh per Test match
- ₹6 lakh per ODI
- ₹3 lakh per T20I

Given his regular presence across formats when fit, his annual earnings from playing for India often cross ₹1–2 crore just in match fees alone.

IPL Earnings

In the Indian Premier League (IPL), Bumrah plays for the Mumbai Indians and has been one of their marquee players for years. In the 2025 season, his contract is valued at around ₹12 crore. This amount is fixed per season, regardless of the number of matches played, making the IPL a major part of his total earnings.

His performances under pressure and ability to close out games make him one of the most valuable bowlers in franchise cricket.

Endorsements and Brand Deals

Off the field, Bumrah has attracted a variety of endorsement deals, particularly in fitness, lifestyle, sportswear, and technology sectors. His calm, no-nonsense image appeals to brands looking for a reliable and disciplined face. He reportedly charges ₹1–1.5 crore per brand endorsement, adding significantly to his income.

Net Worth and Financial Outlook

Combining his BCCI salary, IPL deal, match fees, and endorsements, Jasprit Bumrah's annual income is estimated to be ₹20–25 crore. His net worth is likely in the range of ₹70–90 crore, thanks to steady earnings and smart financial planning.

Bumrah's rise from domestic cricket to becoming one of the richest and most respected pacers globally is a story of both talent and discipline—on and off the field.
