

Wooden Furniture Export of Indonesia: The Latest Trade Analysis of 2024

Wooden furniture's a category of furniture items primarily derived from wood or wood-based materials. These are the topmost preferences of the globally leading traders because of the diverse styles and preferences, along with the abundant raw material supply in certain countries. The cost-effective trade rate set up by the trade authorities and the value-added products has maintained continuity in global trade. Indonesia in Southeast Asia, and Oceania, bordered by Malaysia, Australia, and India in its maritime and land borders, has gradually positioned itself as a substantial contributor to the worldwide wooden furniture export market.

Due to the large plantations of fast-growing softwoods and the sustainable forestry initiatives, the experience of the country in carving and intricate designs, along with a young, trainable labour pool, has led to a total valuation of wooden furniture exports worth 890 million US dollars in 2024. The establishment of the coating industries and the high-quality standards for export markets has benefited the overall revenue.
