

Top 5 Bowlers With Most Wickets in 2025 in Test Cricket

Test cricket in 2025 was defined by relentless pace spells, clever swing, and high-quality spin bowling. Across continents and conditions, bowlers dominated sessions, turning matches with discipline and stamina. Here's a detailed look at the top five bowlers who took the most wickets in Test cricket in 2025, showcasing why the longest format remains a bowler's true arena.

1. Pat Cummins (Australia)

Pat Cummins led the charts with another outstanding year in Test cricket. His ability to extract bounce, maintain pace deep into spells, and deliver breakthroughs at crucial moments made him Australia's most potent weapon. Whether with the new ball or in long middle spells, Cummins consistently dismantled top orders across home and away series.

2. Jasprit Bumrah (India)

Jasprit Bumrah's unique action and pinpoint accuracy earned him a prolific wicket tally in 2025. He was especially lethal in pressure situations, often striking early and cleaning up tails efficiently. Bumrah's control over seam movement and reverse swing made him effective on all surfaces, reinforcing his reputation as a modern Test great.

3. Kagiso Rabada (South Africa)

Kagiso Rabada enjoyed a strong return to peak form in 2025. His raw pace, aggressive lengths, and relentless intensity troubled batters throughout the year. Rabada's ability to strike in short, fiery spells often shifted momentum in South Africa's favor, making him one of the most feared fast bowlers in Test cricket.
