

Fruits and Nuts Export of Russia: The Trade Analysis of 2024

Fruits and Nuts, scientifically known as the mature ovary of flowering plants, are one of the topmost preferences of the reliable global traders worldwide because of their nutritious content and beneficial nature towards the human immune system. The higher demand and nutritional value, along with the seasonality and geographic specialization, have maintained a continuity in the overall drive in the global trade of fruits and nuts. Russia Import Data says, the country in Eastern Europe, and Northern Asia, bordered by Norway and Georgia, in the West and South directions, has emerged as a substantial contributor to the worldwide export market of fruits and nuts due to the growth in berry yields and government support for planting new gardens.

The diversified destination markets and the establishment of the cold chain and processing capacity have resulted in a total valuation of fruits and nuts exports from Russia worth 3.21 billion US dollars in 2024. The potential of the country for export during the off-season and the possibility of using seed and stone crop exports have benefited the overall trade revenue.
